Our Dental bench preparation service is structured to teach students how to perform basic restorative dental procedures on a typodont. Our approach offers hands-on assistance to each student while they complete each step of the preparation. We focus on proper use of materials, proper positioning along with how to produce and evaluate the ideal function for each preparation. We utilize a blended style of teaching which involves direct lectures, a live demonstration (for each step) using loupes with a point-of-view camera, and hands-on guidance through each assigned preparation.

Our goal is to work with each student individually to improve their confidence and hand skills. Tutor sessions are limited and are meant to give students a foundation to continue practicing productively. We teach 3 classes per month and have only 6 students per class.
